UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
NORTHERN DISTRICT OF CALIFORNI	4

ANGIOSC	ORE, INC.,
	Plaintiff,
v.

TRIREME MEDICAL, INC., et al.,

Defendants.

Case No.: 12-CV-3393 YGR

ORDER:

- 1) GRANTING IN PART AND DENYING IN PART MOTION FOR LEAVE TO AMEND;
- ENYING WITHOUT PREJUDICE MOTIONS
- RESOLVING OUTSTANDING DISCOVERY SPUTES; AND
- IENDING PRETRIAL AND TRIAL

Issued concurrently is the Court's Order Granting in Part and Denying in Part the Motion for Summary Judgment of Non-Infringement of defendants Eitan Konstantino, TriReme Medical, LLC, Quattro Vascular Pte Ltd., and QT Vascular Ltd. (f/k/a QT Vascular Pte. Ltd.) (collectively, "Defendants"). This Order resolves four other categories of pending matters: (1) the Motion for Leave to File a Third Amended Complaint of plaintiff AngioScore, Inc. ("AngioScore") (Dkt. No. 202 ("Motion to Amend")); (2) six motions to seal (Dkt. Nos. 155, 184, 186, 199, 209, and 213); (3) three discovery letter briefs (Dkt. Nos. 152, 163, and 215), and (4) amendments to the pretrial and trial schedule necessary in light of the Third Amended Complaint and the Court's resolution of the aforementioned discovery disputes. The Court addresses those four topics in order.

I. MOTION TO AMEND

The Motion to Amend is Granted in Part and Denied in Part. AngioScore has leave to file the proposed Third Amended Complaint attached as Exhibit A to its Motion to Amend, except for the proposed sixth cause of action, for conversion, set forth therein. (Motion to Amend, Ex. A ("TAC"), ¶¶ 66-79.) Under California law, an essential element of conversion is ownership of the converted property. See, e.g., Prakashpalan v. Engstrom, Lipscomb & Lack, 223 Cal. App. 4th 1105, 1135 (2014), as modified on denial of reh'g (Feb. 27, 2014); Los Angeles Fed. Credit Union v.

Madatyan, 209 Cal. App. 4th 1383, 1387 (2012). The proposed Third Amended Complaint lacks a factual basis for its allegation of ownership, which is conclusory. (See TAC $\P$ 68.) Moreover, the Court agrees with Defendants (Dkt. No. 209 at 14) that AngioScore has no basis for alleging ownership, given that Konstantino's Confidential Information and Invention Assignment Agreemen terminated April 1, 2007 (Dkt. No. 209-6 ("Swaroop Decl."), Ex. B (submitted under seal)) and the record does not support a finding that the accused device, the "Chocolate" angioplasty balloon catheter, was developed any earlier than 2009. If Konstantino was not contractually obligated to assign his inventions, AngioScore did not have a personal property interest in those inventions.

In reply, AngioScore argues, in essence, that AngioScore had a property interest in Konstantino's inventions because of Konstantino's membership on AngioScore's board. (Dkt. No. 214 at 13-14.) The authority AngioScore cites in support, however, do not speak to the threshold issue of ownership. At most, they establish that imposition of a constructive trust is a potential remedy for alleged breaches of fiduciary duty under the corporate opportunity doctrine. See Cal. Civ. Code § 2224; Broz v. Cellular Info. Sys., Inc., 673 A.2d 148 (Del. 1996). Because they do not speak to the threshold issue of ownership, they do not rebut Defendants' showing of futility. With respect to the asserted claim of conversion only, Defendants make the requisite "strong showing" of futility required to overcome the law's presumption in favor of leave to amend. Eminence Capital, LLC v. Aspeon, Inc., 316 F.3d 1048, 1052 (9th Cir. 2003).

The other claims all stem from allegations of Konstantino's breach of fiduciary duty, alleedly learned during the course of discovery itself. Defendants fall short of making the required showing of prejudice or strong showing of futility, undue delay, or bad faith. Defendants argue that they would be prejudiced in light of discovery having closed and trial being set for September, but the Court's recalibration of the discovery cutoff, other pretrial, and trial dates eliminates any legally cognizable prejudice flowing from Defendants being made to defend the new claims. In light of the claims, the nature of any additional and necessary discovery is not yet apparent. Further, Defendants make, at most, a cursory showing of undue delay and bad faith. Finally, as to futility, Defendants do not make a strong showing. As to Defendants' statute-of-limitations argument, Konstantino's own statements through counsel on February 23, 2010 support a prima facie case for equitable tolling. The Court has considered, and rejects, Defendants' other futility arguments, except as related to the conversion claim discussed above.

The Court Grants in Part and Denies in Part AngioScore's Motion to Amend. AngioScore has leave to file its Third Amended Complaint, but for the conversion cause of action, within 7 days of the date of this Order. Defendants' response to the Third Amended Complaint is due 7 days after its filing.

MOTIONS TO SEAL II.

Now pending before the Court are six motions to seal. (Dkt. Nos. 155, 184, 186, 199, 209, and 213.) All six motions are hereby DENIED WITHOUT PREJUDICE.

The public holds a presumptive right of access to public records, including pretrial filings in civil cases. See In re Midland Nat. Life Ins. Co. Annuity Sales Practices Litig., 686 F.3d 1115, 1119 (9th Cir. 2012). Thus, under this Court's Civil Local Rule 79-5, the party who has designated an item as sealable bears the burden of demonstrating that it is "privileged, protectable as a trade secret or otherwise entitled to protection under the law." Civ. L.R. 79-5(b). In the context of information proffered in support of dispositive motions or at trial, only a continuing, compelling reason will justify sealing the information or keeping it under seal. See In re Midland, 686 F.3d at 1119.

"[T]he usual presumption of the public's right to access does not apply to non-dispositive motions with the same strength it applies to dispositive motions." Dugan v. Lloyds TSB Bank, PLC, 12-CV-02549-WHA NJV, 2013 WL 1435223, at *1 (N.D. Cal. Apr. 9, 2013) (citing In re Midland, 686 F.3d at 1119). In the context of non-dispositive motions, the party seeking to place and keep information under seal need only make a particularized showing of good cause. See id. at *1-*2. It is insufficient to offer only bare allegations of harm, "unsubstantiated by specific examples or articulated reasoning." Id. at *2. Finally, whether the accompanying motion is dispositive or nondispositive, any request to seal must be "narrowly tailored" to encompass only sealable information. Civ. L.R. 79-5(b).

Here, the parties' numerous motions to seal fail to satisfy these basic standards for two reasons, either of which independently would supply a sufficient basis for denial of the motions. First, the requests are, as a general matter, not narrowly tailored. They seek to seal document exhibits in their entirety, as opposed to the sealable portion of such exhibits. Second, the declarations offered in support of the requests offer, with rare exception, bare allegations of harm, as opposed to articulated reasoning. The parties' motions impose an undue burden on the Court. To grant the motions, the Court would have to ascertain which portions of the voluminous exhibits filed under seal were in fact sealable, and do so using the Court's sense of what specific justification for sealing the parties might have offered. Alternately, the Court could simply deny the motions outright and place all the submitted material into the public record forthwith; the Court cannot say, however, from its review of the record that none of the material is sealable. A better course, therefore, is to allow the parties a final opportunity to address the relevant standard with the requisite specificity.

Accordingly, the parties' pending administrative motions to seal are DENIED WITHOUT PREJUDICE. The respective designating parties shall submit amended declarations and exhibits in support of the sealing requests now before the Court ("Subject Requests"). As to the amended declarations, each designating party's amended declaration shall specifically address each and every exhibit designated for sealing by that party in the Subject Requests. Consistent with the guidance herein, the designating party shall: identify each exhibit they designated for sealing; state whether they still seek to seal it; and, if so, what portion of the exhibit and why. If a long, substantive explanation pertains to more than one designation, a "cross-reference" can be used in lieu of repeating the same explanation. As to the amended exhibits, pursuant to Civil Local Rule 79-5, the exhibits shall be submitted in both public/redacted and nonpublic/unredacted form. The nonpublic version shall be highlighted to reflect the purportedly sealable portion.

Filed concurrently with the amended submissions, the parties shall provide the Court with a substantive proposed form of order using a chart format to identify each and every designation for which sealing is requested and a column for the Court's ruling. The chart shall be organized to allow the Court simply to enter a ruling as it proceeds through the requests from beginning to end.

The amended declarations and exhibits shall be filed no more than 14 days from the date of this Order. A designating party's failure to submit timely an amended declaration shall result in denial with prejudice of that party's sealing requests.
